ABOUT US

CURLture is a multifaceted word, founded in March 2014. It represents accepting and embracing your culture; and in turn your natural hair.

Our platform has naturally expanded to also cover Black Pop Culture, Beauty, Lifestyle and support of Black Owned Businesses. Our aim is to empower others and build a stronger community; nurturing the young minds and future entrepreneurs...

AUTHORS

KINK is our first collaborative project since Curlture was founded in 2014. Launching in 2016, our self published book, KINK combines powerful quotes and uplifting poetry with sultry, vulnerable yet striking imagery of black females whom possess skin tones, hair styles, ages and hair textures that rarely shine in the media. We wanted to capture, highlight and reinforce the wide spectrum of black beauty across the diaspora and create a book which can be passed through generations to come.

OBJECTIVE

Simply, the aims of our work is to inspire and empower young black men and women at your university, who we believe are our future leaders.

REVIEWS

@hairthebeat - This book is truly one for the coffee table, the bookshelf, the classroom and the handbag, it is one for you daughter, your mother, your Aunty, your niece and for YOU!! So proud of @cultureuk they have created a masterpiece of a mirror reflecting black girl magic!

@real_naija_chick - #Kink speaks to me in every way! It reminds me to stop feeling the need to fit in when I know everything about me is different. I speak different, I walk different, I act different, I laugh different, I wear my crown different and make decisions different to what society considers the norm. But my "difference" is not bad, it's good, it makes me unique; it's called #blackGirlMagic and I love it!
